

QUICK WORK.

New Hibernian Hall at Seventh and Market Ready For Occupancy.

Will Be Turned Over to Divisions Next Tuesday Night.

Division 1 Will Initiate Large Class Under the New Ritual.

ALL MEMBERS INVITED TO ATTEND

The news last week that the Ancient Order of Hibernians had secured a new hall created something of a sensation among the members, who will be still more surprised to learn that the new home is now ready for occupancy and will be formally opened at the meeting of Division 1 next Tuesday night.

The hall is located on the southwest corner Seventh and Market streets, and occupies the entire second floor over Taylor's dry goods store, the entrance being on Seventh street. During the past two weeks the Hall Board has had painters, electricians, decorators and upholsters at work every day, Mike Walsh having the contract for the painting and Joseph Hubbuch doing the decorating and furnishing the carpets. The hall and ante-room will be lighted by electricity, handsome fixtures having been placed therein by John Cronan, the well known Third-street electrician.

Fine taste has been displayed in the arrangement of the officers' stations and furniture, which is all handsome, particularly the chairs donated by the divisions for the officers. The carpets and furnishings are brilliant in color, and a most agreeable surprise awaits all who attend the opening. Messrs. Tom Keenan and James Coleman have had charge of the work, which they have had executed with surprising rapidity.

Tuesday night the paraphernalia for the new ritual will be exhibited for the first time, when Division 1 will have a class of twelve to initiate. The degree team has for weeks been preparing for this exemplification of the degrees. They are instructive and interesting, surpassing in all respects the expectations of the most exacting. The County Board has spared no expense, and Louisville will possess an outfit unsurpassed by any in this country. Members of all divisions are extended an invitation to be present that night, and also on the night following, when the third and fourth degrees will be conferred at the meeting of Division 4.

President Dolan and Secretary Tynan, of Division 1, have issued cards to the members notifying them of the annual election of officers, which also takes place Tuesday night. Those who have served during the past year have done so with satisfaction to the membership, and the changes in officers will be few if any. The gentlemen to be initiated are all well known and will add material strength to the oldest division in Louisville.

Division 2 will assemble next Thursday night, and altogether the week promises to be the liveliest and most important in Hibernian circles for many years past. Because of all this work the order will this year forego its annual Fourth of July picnic, but it is probable that steps will soon be taken for a union celebration by the entire membership.

CEDAR GROVE.

Misses Ernestine Werst and Marie Bosche This Year's Graduates.

The graduating exercises of St. Benedict's Academy, Cedar Grove, took place Wednesday morning at the beautiful St. Anthony's Hall, Twenty-third and Market streets. A large audience had gathered at an early hour to witness this gala-day of the old Alma Mater. The two young ladies on whom the institution was to confer the graduating honors, were Misses Ernestine Werst and Marie Irma Bosche. Unlike to other commencement exercises we noticed here a pleasing innovation, consisting in the crowning of the two young lady graduates immediately after the valedictory played by the academy orchestra.

The programme, consisting of musical selections, drills, tableaux and recitations, was rendered by the pupils with admirable precision, and we may add with unusual eloquence. We can not refrain from mentioning especially the sweet and merry crowd of "Little Gleamers," the "Combination Drill," remarkable for the elegant and graceful movements of the senior class, and the unique "Bells," where the merry sleigh bells, the joyful wedding bells, the interesting fire bells and the mournful funeral bells, were pictured in words, songs, costumes and tableaux simply to perfection. Of the musical and spectacular part of the programme "The Bells" unquestionably were the most novel and the most pleasing. Miss Ernestine Werst delivered the valedictory, which as a composition and sample of elocution deserves the highest praise. "On the Portals of the Future" was the title of this essay. The youthful author showed herself master of the occasion, and voiced admirably the thrilling emotions which necessarily fill a young heart at the closing hour of her happy school days, standing at the threshold of a future so unlike to the past, a future so full of uncertainties as to dangers, joys and sorrows; sadly tearing herself away from those hallowed walls, the scene of her earnest aspirations to intellectual proficiency and of true happiness; drawing courage and strength only from that thoroughly Christian education she has received, an education not only in science, but also in solid virtue. It is but doing her justice to compliment Miss Werst upon her natural rendition, her sweet delivery, the ease and gracefulness with which she accomplished the arduous task of valedictory. She deserves to be heartily congratulated upon her talent, earnest work and success. These the institution duly recognized when four gold medals, that of literary merit, of scholarship, of deportment and of music were awarded her amid the applause of the audience.

LAWN FETE.

A Generous Reception Awaits Visitors to Clifton Tuesday Night.

A number of the leading ladies and gentlemen residing in Clifton have arranged for an enjoyable social lawn fete next Tuesday afternoon and evening, to be held on Rev. Father White's lawn. The children will be entertained from 3 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. All who attend will be treated to ice cream and cake, and in addition there will be an elaborate supper served by the ladies. A number of handsome prizes will be distributed in a novel manner, which will add interest to this affair. It may properly be remarked that there is no prettier suburban place than Father White's lawn in Clifton, and a generous reception awaits all who attend. The reverend gentleman is one of the best known clergymen in Louisville, and as the cars pass his place the grounds should be filled with his friends from all parts of the city. Those of our readers who would spend a really pleasant evening and enjoy the pure country air should bear this fete in mind.

The general management of this fete and reception has been placed in the hands of Mrs. Kate Orth and Misses Rose Shea and M. Merrimee, and they will be assisted by Secretary Ed Burke and Treasurer John Donahue. A pleasing feature will be the presentation of pretty gold medals to those young ladies who sell over fifty tickets, of whom there are several. Special committees will look after the comfort and enjoyment of the visitors as follows:

Dining Hall—Messames Oeswein, Boldt, Trench, Maguire, Marrs and Flanagan.

Refreshments—Misses Rose Shea, Hetie Dohahue, Julia Holloran, Nellie Dohahue, Mary Shockey, Anna Leahy and Nellie Hannan.

Prizes—Messrs. Joseph Kessack, George Martin, H. Merrimee and Girard Alexander.

Custodians—Messrs. Owen Keiran, Thomas Hannan, Dan Leahy and Joseph Oeswein.

FAVOR THE UNION.

Catholic Knights Take Steps Toward Their Annual Celebration.

The regular monthly meeting of the Central Committee of the Catholic Knights of America at St. Mary's Hall was attended by delegates from all the branches, Messrs. John Recktenwald and H. E. Koetter representing Branch 7 of New Albany, the last one admitted.

President Edward J. McDermott, of the Catholic Union, delivered an able address, as did also Newton G. Rogers and William C. Smith, after which a motion was unanimously adopted recommending all branches to affiliate with the Catholic Union.

President Veeneman appointed Messrs. Michael Reichert, William T. Meehan, Joe McGinn, Edmund Rapp and George Schlafer a special committee to devise ways and means for holding the annual celebration.

Delegates Veeneman and McGinn made their reports, which gave general satisfaction. Both were commended for their watchfulness and good work at the national convention.

FOR THE BIG DAY.

The Trinity Minstrel Company now predict the greatest Fourth of July celebration ever witnessed in Louisville, as they will spare neither labor nor expense. The following are the officers making the arrangements:

President—James B. Kelly.
Vice President—Ben Hund.
Secretary—Tom Garvey.
Treasurer—Joe Piazza.

Executive Committee—Joseph Kirchner, Edward Bosler, Will Gast.
The Young Ladies' Auxiliary will serve a bounteous supper and refreshments.

CONVALESCING.

John T. Rodgers, who four weeks ago suffered an attack of muscular rheumatism that has since confined him to his home, 1923 Bank street, was yesterday reported much better. Next week he will leave for Martinsville, accompanied by his wife. His friends hope for his entire recovery and speedy return home.

NASHVILLE.

Knights of Columbus Hold Their Second Initiation and Banquet.

Eighty-Five Candidates Admitted From All Parts of the South.

Hon. Edward J. McDermott Delivers the Principal Address.

BISHOP BYRNE WELCOMES VISITORS

The recent initiation and banquet of Nashville Council of the Knights of Columbus took place last Sunday, when eighty-five candidates from all parts of the South were admitted to membership. About 200 visiting members were present, many of the number being from Louisville. A special mass was celebrated at the Cathedral at which all the Knights were present in a body. Rev. Father John Morris, Chaplain of the Nashville Council, was the celebrant, and during his sermon took occasion to pay a handsome tribute to the great good the Knights of Columbus are doing among the Catholic laymen of the country. After the mass the Knights and candidates repaired to Watkins' Hall, where the degrees were conferred. What followed is thus told by the Nashville American:

When the initiation was over the Knights repaired to the Conservatory of Music, where an elaborate banquet was spread. None of the hotels were able to accommodate the crowd, and the selection of the spacious Conservatory of Music proved a happy solution to the problem. Long tables were arranged in the concert hall, which was fittingly decorated in honor of the occasion. Smaller tables were placed on the cool verandas of the old-fashioned building, and the visiting Knights were given the preference of this inviting place.

After the elaborate menu had been fully enjoyed and the cigars passed around the speckmaking began. Hon. M. T. Bryan acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers in a happy and delightful manner.

The Knights were given a cordial and hospitable welcome by Right Rev. Bishop Byrne, who sat in the center of the toastmaster's table. Bishop Byrne spoke of the magnificent showing the Knights of Columbus had made in recent years, and said he looked forward to it with keen anticipation of the great good that would result from it. He spoke of the value of Catholic laymen in the upbuilding of the church and admonished those present to make their daily lives an example of all that is good and holy. "A good, honest, upright, noble Catholic man," he said, "one who is fair in all his dealings, pure in his thoughts and actions and charitable to his fellow-men, has more influence for good in a community than a dozen sermons. Let your lives be such that the men of the world will regard you with respect and admiration. This is what it means to be a good, practical Catholic."

The first speaker to follow Bishop Byrne was Hon. Edward J. McDermott, from Kentucky, and one of the most gifted of that State's orators. His toast was "Leo the Thirteenth." He was introduced in a pleasant way by Toastmaster Bryan and was greeted with a tremendous outburst of applause. He said in part:

"Though I am sensible of the honor shown me by the request for a speech on the toast of Leo XIII., I feel that I, a layman, shall not be able to express fittingly the admiration, reverence and love due from us and from all high-minded men to the great Pontiff who, in his ninety-second year, after twenty-three memorable years of service in his high office, in spite of all sorts of trying difficulties and dangers, in spite of atheists and hostile fanatics, in spite of petty Italian politicians and of innumerable enemies of the church in many lands, without any bayonets to sustain him, still sits in majesty on the imperishable throne of Peter. His influence in the world still outweighs the power of any king or emperor. He relies not upon brute force, but upon conscience and the word of God."

"In the first place, he is a practical man. In his youth he was a learned, skillful diplomat, and experience has increased his power. As Bishop of Perugia he not only founded schools, colleges, hospitals and churches, but he built good roads and encouraged thrift and fostered agriculture. He takes a high and broad view of the affairs of the world. He knows well the weak points and strong points of that modern Zeitgeist which many praise and few understand. Socialism, commercialism, militarism and atheism he knows thoroughly, and against them he has hurled his shining lance with tremendous power. He spares no folly or wrong among the rich or the poor. Though he was born of an aristocratic and titled family, he has always led an austere life. Idleness and luxury he has scorned. His sympathies have been with the poor, and yet in his great encyclicals on capital and labor he has given no countenance to envy or injustice or riot on the one side, nor to greed nor to oppression on the other."

"In the promotion of learning and literature he has won the admiration and the gratitude of scholars. He has told the laity and the clergy that they must foster education in good primary schools and in broad, thorough-going universities. He has told the clergy again and again that they must lead in intellectual excellence as well as in holiness of life. He has told us that a model priest must have the priestly spirit; that he must lead a pure, self-sacrificing, exemplary life; that he must have priestly knowledge, both secular and ecclesiastical learning of a wide range."

"In season and out of season he has sought to be a harbinger of peace to every nation afflicted by strife or bloodshed, to be a true and diligent representative of the Prince of Peace. Wherever grimmish war has shown his wrinkled front this gentleman has sought to avoid the clash of arms and the spilling of blood, and yet he is no weakling or coward, as his firm suppression of brigandage at Benevento showed when he was quite a young man, but the representative of the Pope. Under his administration as Bishop of Perugia there came a time once when the prison did not contain a single criminal. He has labored, too, for charity and brotherly love among all men, for unity among all Christians, for fair and cool debate of religious dogmas. Discord and bitterness have been hateful to him. In his encyclical on Americanism he has given his approval of a well regulated liberty in his fold, of individual freedom of thought, speech and action within the limits of the moral law, and yet he abates no jot of those imperishable truths which he as the teacher of the immortal church must maintain in all their pristine strength and beauty."

"The marvelous growth of the church in this country under new and trying conditions, in an atmosphere which it was hoped by the enemies of the church would dwarf or stifle it, shows that nothing can overthrow it—that men and time try their strength against it in vain. We know that one of the chosen apostles betrayed his master; that another out of worldly respect thrice denied him; that the Pope does not claim to be incapable of sin or infallible as to science or governmental affairs and many other matters; but if the Popes, in the main, had not been good men and the church sound in its tenets and generally wise in its government it could not have stood the corroding influences of centuries of change and strife. From the day when the shackled St. Peter in the old Mamertine prison in Rome baptized his jailers and went joyfully to death, up to this hour, the Papacy has held its moral sway over ever increasing millions of men in all quarters of the earth. Rome, Rome Immortal, sanctified by the tears and blood of the early Christian martyrs, saved from ruin again and again by the power of the church in the early and middle ages, nourished and enriched by the offerings of Catholics of every Christian nation, may not honor him as she should, but we and all Catholics in this free republic, owing and giving allegiance in civil affairs only to our own flag and our own institutions, nevertheless rever and love Leo the Thirteenth, and in matters falling properly within his sphere give him a true fidelity and a cordial support. We are proud of his goodness, his moral and intellectual grandeur, and his just fame. It is no blind fanatical, superstitious devotion. It rests upon a reasonable, solid foundation and all wise, high-minded, scholarly men can understand and respect, even if they do not share, our feelings."

"His mind, undimmed by age, rising above the dross and mist of earth and its petty clamors, gleams before us like the moving star, preceeding and foretelling the approach of a brighter, clearer and happier day. To many people he is an absurd or dreadful bogie, unlike anything in the heavens above or the earth beneath. To us he is not a god, not even a saint, not too good for nature's daily use, but pre-eminently a good man, a wise man, a religious man, full of human sympathy and charity. Long may he abide with us."

INDIANA KNIGHTS.

Hold Large and Enthusiastic Meeting in New Albany.

The Catholic Knights of New Albany held a large and enthusiastic meeting at Holy Trinity Hall last Sunday evening. All the branches in Southern Indiana were represented, many coming to hear the address of Dennis Gorman, the newly appointed national organizer.

Short but interesting speeches were made by Rev. Fathers Kelly and Underreiter, followed by Organizer Gorman, who explained to non-members the many benefits derived from membership in the Catholic Knights of America, dwelling at some length on the successful history of the organization and the proceedings of the late St. Louis convention. The Supreme Council has gone actively to work throughout the country, and he predicted that it would not be long till the reserve fund reaches the immense sum of $1,000,000.

Miss Eva Horn, the accomplished and pretty daughter of Bro. Horn, of Branch 7 of New Albany, gave a recitation entitled "The Maniac," which was well rendered and warmly applauded.

President Jonathan Thickett, of Branch 64 of Jeffersonville, made some spirited remarks, as did also President Frank Zoeller, of Branch 9 of New Albany. The meeting was held under the auspices of Branch 7, and will no doubt result in an increase of the membership.

Figs are aperient and wholesome. They are said to be valuable as a food for those suffering from cancer; they are used externally as well as internally.

UNITED LEAGUE.

Enthusiastic Meetings and New Branches Being Formed in Many Counties.

Great Gathering Adopts Resolutions at Grenagh, in County Cork.

Cablegrams From America Congratulating the Irish Party in Parliament.

IRISH REFORMS THAT ARE DEMANDED

On Sunday a great meeting, under the auspices of the United Irish League, was held at Grenagh, in the constituency of Mid-Cork, says the Dublin Weekly Freeman in its issue of June 8. The meeting was very largely attended and included several contingents from outlying districts. The chair was occupied by the Rev. Father Glaishear, and the speakers included Messrs J. C. Flynn, M. P.; E. Crean, M. P.; D. D. Sheehan, M. P.; J. J. Howard, Chairman Cork County Council, and Alderman Walsh. A couple of policemen were in attendance near the platform.

The Reverend Chairman, in opening the proceedings, asked the people to put their hands down deep into their pockets and show they were determined to support the Irish Parliamentary party. The people were, he said, under the strongest obligations to support their Parliamentary representatives.

Letters of apology were received from Rev. Father Kennedy, of Banbury; Rev. Father Griffin, of Donoghmore, and F. W. Mahony, of Banbury. On motion of John Daly, seconded by T. B. Healy, Chairman of the Macroom District Council, the following resolution was adopted:

"That we demand self-government, and pledge ourselves to carry on the fight until our legitimate rights are conceded by the granting of a legislative assembly in Dublin to make laws for the Irish people according to Irish ideas; that no settlement of the land question be deemed satisfactory until ownership of the land by the tiller under a scheme of compulsory sale and purchase which will also secure the reinstatement of evicted tenants and guard the interest of the laborers; that we protest against the manner in which this country is presently overtaxed; that we demand complete educational equality for the Catholics of Ireland, including the establishment and endowment of a university in whose benefits we can conscientiously participate; that we condemn landgrabbing in every shape and form, and hereby pledge ourselves to deal with it by every means wherever it shows its hateful head."

D. D. Sheehan, M. P., speaking as one who had been prominently identified with the labor movement in the past, said that, now that he had been elected to Parliament, he would do everything to promote the interests and advocate the grievances of all classes in the community. He referred to the courtesy with which he had been received by the members of the Irish party into their ranks. He maintained that they could have no peace, contentment or satisfactory solution of the land question in Ireland until the landlords were expropriated completely and absolutely from the land. It was the people's duty to the National movement and for the safeguarding of the farmers that landgrabbing should not be encouraged.

J. J. Howard, Chairman Cork County Council, congratulated the people on having secured as their representative for Mid-Cork a gentleman who could be relied on to look after the interests of his constituents, and one who was a valuable addition to the present useful party. The laborers, farmers and artisans were all more firmly united than ever, and determined to carry on the fight which was being waged under the United Irish League, which was no narrow or one-sided League, for it embraced every interest within the island of a truly Nationalist character.

Eugene Crean, M. P., appealed to every person in the district who was not a member of the League to immediately join its ranks. The people of America and Australia were ready to give a helping hand in the great movement, and nearly every day cablegrams were received in the House of Commons from those countries congratulating the Irish party on their great work there.

J. C. Flynn, M. P., in the course of a powerful speech, said that the work which lay before the organization and before the Irish Parliamentary party at present was no ordinary work of politics, as understood in the conventional sense in England, but it meant for them the retention by the people of Ireland of their native land.

On Saturday an important meeting to establish a branch of the United Irish League was held at Ballynagat, County Down. Rev. Father M'Bride presided over a very large attendance, and in a vigorous speech said T. W. Russell was following in good footsteps and had the whole strength of the United Irish League at his back. Compulsory purchase would be an advance, but Nationalists would not be satisfied till they would get home rule, and this was to be attained simply and solely by every man, woman and child joining the United Irish League. The Irish party were really united, thanks to the United Irish League, which William O'Brien had almost exhausted himself in bringing to be such a glorious power for Ireland. Those of them who read the papers could see the brilliant work the party is doing in the House of Commons, because they were united and their hearts were in their work. Resolutions demanding Irish reforms were adopted, and a strong branch of the league was formed.

On Sunday a splendid public meeting was held at Cloonfad, in support of the principles of the United Irish League. It is situated on the borders of North Galway, South Mayo and South Roscommon, and as the places around are thickly populated the meeting was exceedingly large, and the greatest enthusiasm and determination characterized the proceedings throughout. The platform was erected at the end of the village, and the square was almost filled with people. Martin Owens presided and stirring speeches were made by John O'Donnell, M. P., Michael Delaney, Francis Burke, Thomas Higgins and William Cunnane, of the Knock branch.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Listry branch of the United Irish League was held at the Chapel Cross on Sunday. The member for the division, John Murphy, M. P., attended and received a warm ovation. Morty Buckley presided.

A very successful meeting was held at Tierneevan, near Gort, County Galway, on Sunday, for the purpose of establishing a branch of the United Irish League. In the absence of the Rev. Father Sweeney the chair was taken by John Quinn. The Chairman briefly and clearly explained the objects of the meeting, and said that it was gratifying to see the people of the parish supporting the cause of the United Irish League. W. J. Duffy, M. P., and James Lynham, who were received with loud cheers, addressed the meeting, and a branch of the United Irish League was then formed and over eighty members enrolled. D. F. Burke being the first to set the example by giving a generous subscription. John Quinn was appointed President, Martin Nestor Treasurer and Michael Mitchell Secretary.

ROYAL IRISH STYLE.

That's How Branch 24 Entertained the Central Committee.

Members of the Central Committee of the Catholic Knights of America visited their Limerick brethren at the meeting of Branch 24 Tuesday evening, and all those present were delighted with their reception. This branch has been growing steadily, President McGinn announcing that five members had been initiated at the preceding meeting.

There was a large attendance present when President McGinn introduced the visitors, among whom were State Officers Reichert and Score, Jonathan Thickett of Jeffersonville, Henry Veeneman, William T. Meehan, Supreme Trustee William C. Smith, John Sheridan, Louis Hamel, Peter Dowling, John Ruddy, J. Henkle, and several members from Branch 32, nearly all of whom made short talks, complimenting Branch 24, several expressing the hope that other branches would observe its example in arousing the members to attend meetings and become acquainted with the Central Committee.

Before adjourning the visitors were invited to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Wolf, Eighth and Oldham streets, where they were seated before bountifully laden tables and feasted in royal Irish style. This was the most delightful affair ever tendered the Knights, who departed with loud praises for Mrs. Wolf, whose charming manner and unbounded hospitality delighted every one. The toast to the host and hostess was drank amid hearty cheers.

MODEL COFFEE STORE.

John M. Mulloy, who for years past has enjoyed a large coffee and tea trade, has moved from Fourth street to West Market, between Sixth and Seventh, where he has the most modern and best equipped coffee and tea store in the Southwest. His formal opening will not take place till next week, when the public will be invited to visit the store and witness his method of roasting coffee fresh every day. This is the only house that will allow public inspection of its interior workings.

MARY CONNELL WINS.

The committee of the Third Order of St. Francis this week awarded the gold watch to Miss Mary Connell, a young girl employed in the dressmaking department of the John C. Lewis Company, hers being the highest number. The drawing took place in St. Francis Hall. Books on the watch were closed last week, and a goodly sum for the poor was realized.

POPULAR OFFICIAL.

Charlie McCarthy, the well known turnkey at the jail, is considered one of Jailor Pfanz's most popular deputies, and can be counted on to help his superior wonderfully in the coming primary, as he has a large following in his district—Limerick. Charlie is ever ready to welcome his friends at the jail, but hopes none may need his services in an official way.

CATHEDRAL CELEBRATION.

Tickets are out for the annual outing of the Cathedral societies, which will be held this year at Riverview Park on Wednesday, July 17. The Cathedral celebrations are always largely attended and very enjoyable.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Hibernians Enthusiastic Over Their Success During the Past Year.

John Cavanaugh the Unanimous Choice For Division President.

Jeffersonville Honors Robert Gleason With Another Full Term.

GREAT INTEREST WAS MANIFESTED

The Hibernians of Louisville, New Albany and Jeffersonville have enjoyed another year of unprecedented prosperity and success, all divisions having increased in membership and finances. This has been due in great measure to the zealous work of the officers, all of whom have been untiring in their efforts to make the Ancient Order of Hibernians a more representative Irish organization whenever and wherever possible.

The annual elections occur during the month of June, and the interest taken therein this year was greater than ever before. Division 4 last week held the first election, which resulted in the choice of all its old officers.

Monday night Division 3 held the largest meeting that has assembled this year, with President John Cavanaugh in the chair. Besides the regular routine business it was resolved to hold only monthly sessions during the months of July, August and September, meeting on the first Monday of each month.

The division members of the Hall Board made their report, after which it was unanimously voted to purchase for the new hall an officer's chair of handsome design. Patrick Holly entertained the members with an eloquent address on unity, and many take this to mean that the division will before long make its headquarters in Hibernian Hall.

The election of officers then took place, the vote for each being unanimous:

President—John Cavanaugh.
Vice President—Michael Hohan.
Recording Secretary—Patrick T. Sullivan.

Financial Secretary—Nicholas J. Kavanagh.

Treasurer—George J. Butler.
Sergeant-at-Arms—Patrick Begley.
Sentinel—Hugh J. Higgins.
Standing Committee—Denny Coleman, Lawrence Mackey, James Brown, Joseph Cooney and Phil Cavanaugh.

Tuesday night there was an immense turnout at the meeting of Division 1 in Jeffersonville, over one hundred members being present. Peter Reilly was initiated as an honorary member and one application was referred. The Visiting Committee reported William Coyle as almost entirely recovered from the accident which befell him recently, with no members on the sick list. After the transaction of the usual business the election of officers was gone into, with the following result:

President—Robert Gleason.
Vice President—B. A. Coll.
Treasurer—Michael Kinney.
Recording Secretary—John J. Devitt.
Financial Secretary—Frank Hogan.
Standing Committee—William Coyle, Richard Kennedy, Pat Dixon, John Hogan, Con O'Neill.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Thomas Horan.
Sentinel—Steve Breen.
Marshal—Mike Noon.

The only contests were for places on the Standing Committee and Sergeant-at-Arms, which were close and exciting. The division accepted an invitation to be present at the opening of the new Hibernian Hall in Louisville next Tuesday night and then adjourned for a social session of an hour, during which refreshments of all kinds and cigars were served everybody.

The officers selected thus far are all tried men, who will have the hearty support of the entire membership during the coming year. They will be installed by their respective County Presidents at their next meeting.

MAYME KILEY.

Popular Young Lady President of Trinity Council Auxiliary.

The Young Ladies' Auxiliary of Trinity Council, Y. M. I., held their annual election of officers at the club house on East Gray street Tuesday night, resulting as follows:

President—Mayme Kiley.
Vice President—Josephine Hoertz.
Treasurer—Alice Ellard.
Recording Secretary—Mayme Fink.
Financial Secretary—Mrs. James F. Kiley.

Cor. Secretary—Gertrude Hukenbeck.
Marshal—Lillie Ackermann.

The organization is to be congratulated upon the selection of the foregoing officers, who are all popular young ladies of loveable disposition and pleasing traits of character, especially Miss Mayme Kiley, whose hosts of friends are elated over her election. For two years she was Recording Secretary of this well-known society.
